Course Description

Civil Procedure provides a basic introduction to the process of civil litigation in federal court. Over the course of the semester, we will cover a variety of topics – from the limited powers of federal courts to the nuances of joining parties to a specific action. To start, we will focus largely on the power and authority of federal courts to hear cases. This concentration will lead us to ask when and where a federal court can hear a particular suit, as well as what law a court must apply. Topics covered will include personal jurisdiction, subject matter jurisdiction, venue, and Erie doctrine. We will then turn our attention to how the litigation process in federal court works, covering initial pleadings through final judgment. Topics covered will then include preliminary pleading, rules of discovery, joinder, adjudication without trial, trial itself, and post-trial alternatives.

Important Texts

Yeazell, Civil Procedure (Aspen Pub., 8th ed.) [Required]

Attendance

Your attendance during each class session is mandatory. Students missing more than four (4) class meetings without excuse may be barred from receiving credit for the course. Should you be unable to attend class because of an issue beyond your control, please let me know as promptly as possible.

Grading

Your grade in this course will be based entirely on the final exam. As in most classes, grades will be assigned on a pre-established curve, and they will be awarded with your identity hidden; i.e., I will not know how any individual student scored until after I have finalized my grade report.
Exam

There will be one exam will be held at the end of the semester. The exam will ask a number of questions, some multiple-choice and one long essay, each designed to test your mastery of issues big and small. The entire exam will be “open book,” though I encourage you not to rely too heavily (or at all) on commercially prepared materials.

Class Participation

Class participation is an integral part of this course, and all students are expected to be prepared each day to answer questions. Volunteers are always welcome, and I will call on students to answer questions at random throughout the semester. If, for whatever reason, you have been unable to prepare for particular class session, please let me know before class; I will not call on you that day. Please do not make a habit of coming to class unprepared.

Outside-of-Class Meetings

I will try to be as accessible as possible to meet with students outside of class. Feel free to contact me by e-mail or by telephone to schedule an appointment or to ask a question. Of course, if you prefer, you are always welcome to see me after class or in my office.

Course Outline and Assignment Sheets

Attached to this syllabus is a tentative outline of the topics we will cover during the semester. Also appended is the first batch of reading assignments – which should take us through the first couple of weeks of the course. As the semester progresses, I will distribute additional assignment sheets, each providing detailed assignments for a handful of weeks.
